Welcome to the Global Watch Weekly Report

Dear Global Watch Weekly Member

It's happened again. In early January, the world was transfixed when jihadists launched a series of attacks around Paris, killing seventeen innocent people. Three terrorists, who were linked to Al-Qa'ida's especially virulent Yemeni franchise, were on a suicide mission, as is their habit. Eleven of the murdered were from the staff of Charlie Hebdo, the famous Parisian satirical magazine. Several of the other victims were Jews.

The terrorists' motivation was the usual adolescent mishmash of inchoate rage, virulent Islamism, and anti-Semitism. French and world leaders promised vengeance and "never again." The customary public rituals and hashtags followed. Yet effective action is more difficult to sustain than online enthusiasm.

So here we are again, ten months later, in the bloody aftermath of the next jihadist horror inflicted on France. On the evening of Friday, November 13, eight terrorists attacked six public sites across Paris with automatic weapons and bombs. Scenes at the downtown Bataclan theater, where a heavy metal concert was commandeered by jihadists, with hostages being methodically executed in cold blood, defy easy description.

All eight of the attackers are dead, seven by their own bomb vests. By any standards, their evil exploit stands as a "spectacular" in the annals of recent jihadism. The closest comparison is with the November 2008 attacks in Mumbai by Pakistani jihadists, an agonizing ordeal that lasted four days and took 164 innocent lives. As in India, the Parisian attacks hit multiple urban targets with the intent of inflicting mass casualties, a bloody one-way mission for the terrorists that horrified the world.

There's no doubt that jihadists were behind this attack, given the modus operandi and reported shouts of "Allahu akbar" (God is great) and similar Islamist taunts by the murderers. The Islamic State in Iraq and Sham (i.e. the Levant), better known as ISIS, the world's most feared terrorist group, has already claimed responsibility. Their choice of language in describing the "miracles" in Paris, the "capital of prostitution and obscenity," is revealing: "Today brothers from all across the world set foot in Gaul and remind the kaffir (unbeliever) that we live beside you."

The impact of these attacks on the European Union is likely to be deep and long-lasting. What 9/11 was for America in 2001, what Bali was for Australia in 2002, and what 7/7 was for Britain in 2005, the Paris atrocity will likely be for France—and for Europe. The Schengen Agreement, which gave the EU open borders, was already ailing under the impact of vast numbers of refugees surging into Europe from Asia and Africa. The Paris attacks put the stupidity of Europe's nonchalant attitude into question.

In this edition we look at the significance of the Paris attacks from a perspective that the media would never consider.

Enjoy.

A STRANGE SENSE OF DÉJÀ VU

A strange sense of déjà vu is what comes to mind over a week after France experienced the worst terrorist attack in its history. Parisians are struggling to come to grips with the bloodshed of the night before — and with the feeling that it represented a horrific escalation of another assault on their city just 10 months earlier.

In our January 9th edition of the Global Watch Weekly we were discussing the Charlie Hebdo attacks in which a total of twenty people were killed at four locations between 7 and 9 January, including the three suspects; and at least twenty-one others were injured, some critically. Up until last week the attacks were the deadliest act of terrorism in France since the 1961 Vitry-Le-François train bombing by the Organisation de l'armée secrète (OAS).

However the attacks of Friday 13th November far exceeded what happened back in January in terms of carnage and impact with 120 deaths and over 200 injured.

Many Parisians expressed shock that the attackers had targeted ordinary people in one of the liveliest areas of the city: the 11th Arrondissement, a neighborhood known for its diverse population, crowded bars, and trendy restaurants.

The Bataclan, where 89 people were killed by heavily armed assailants, is a popular music venue for many Parisians. It is also a few blocks away from the former headquarters of Charlie Hebdo, the satirical newspaper that had been targeted in January by terrorists who killed 11 people, including cartoonists who had drawn caricatures of Muhammad.

“The Charlie Hebdo attacks were more symbolic,” said Astrid Weinachter, a 19-year-old student who lives in the area. “The victims were journalists, and the terrorists had political motives. This time, it could have been me.”

Like Weinachter, Celine de Stael lives in the neighborhood and said she was terrified by the fact that attackers could enter a place and shoot into a random crowd.

“I still have friends who live in the area and haven’t returned my calls,” said the 42-year-old communication officer, who added that she would not go out on Saturday night because “I am not ready.”

However, like other Parisians, both women said they refused to give in to fear. They also both said that Friday night’s attacks were predictable and perhaps would not be the last.

“What happened is the logical consequence of January 7,” Weinachter said. “Charlie Hebdo was only the beginning.”

Though the attacks at the Bataclan were of an entirely different scale than the Charlie Hebdo, the situation at the crime scene was similar: Dozens of police cordoned off the area, while a cortège of ambulances and funeral services went back and forth to rescue or retrieve the victims.

One striking similarity with the Charlie Hebdo attack was the reaction of some Muslims in France, who feared that these attacks would again stigmatize a community that often feels ostracized. Many members of Muslim associations in Paris insist that such barbaric attacks have nothing to do with their faith.

"The Muslim community has already paid the cost of these attacks. The majority of us are quiet, peaceful. But we have to pay for these 1 percent of people who are out of control," said Hassen Farsadou, the head of the Union of Muslim Associations in the Paris suburb of Seine-St.-Denis.

Farsadou said that local authorities had closed Muslim schools in the area, and that "Muslims are terrified at the idea that they will be targeted because they are Muslims."

After Charlie Hebdo, Farsadou said, "We felt that people spoke badly of us, and Islamophobic acts were on the rise."

THE PATTERN SINCE 1990

It is likely that as you read this that very few other media articles you read about this will show a link to freemasonry but the rabbit hole goes a lot deeper than just a political war between Islamic extremists and western values.

As you will be more than be aware, over the last twenty years, no religion has been in the media spotlight more than Islam. Since the first Gulf War in 1990 and George Bush Snr mention of the need for a "New World Order", there has been an escalation of tragic major world events in which Islam is either at the forefront or somehow still indirectly connected.

In August 1998 there was a terrorist attack on the US embassy in Kenya which killed 223 people and injured more than 4000.

In October 2000 there was the suicide attack against the United States Navy while it was harboured in the port of Aden in Yemen in which 17 sailors were killed and 39 injured.

On September 11th 2001, we all then witnessed the most tragic terrorist attacks in the history of terrorism with the coordination of four terrorist attacks on the United States in which close to 3000 people died. This then led to the October 2001 invasion of Afghanistan and the hunt for Osama Bin Laden.

In March 2003 we saw the United States under the leadership of George Bush Jr invade Iraq for the second time as retribution for the terrorist attacks on the United States. A war in which the Iraqi Baathist regime was decimated and Saddam Hussein eventually captured, tried and hanged by this own people.

In March 2004 we witnessed the Madrid train bombings in which 191 people died and over 1800 were wounded followed by the July 7th London bombings in which 52 people died and 700 were injured.

In November 2008 we saw a terrorist attack on Mumbai in India in which 185 people died and more than 300 people injured

In 2011 we also witnessed the cold blooded Anders Behring Breivik, who master minded a simultaneous terrorist attack on the Norwegian capital of Oslo killing 8 people, whilst going on a shoot spree which ended in 69 deaths. All based on him wanting to further the agenda of wanting European governments to resist the tide of Islam.

In 2013 we witnessed the terrorist attack on the Boston Marathon which was traced back to disenfranchised brothers who were motivated by Islamic extremists

In 2014 we have seen the rise of ISIS in Iraq, unbelievably after the Western Powers fighting 2 wars in that region in 1990 and 2004 to rid the country of extremists.

And in 2015 we are now witnessing what is happening in France with the terrorist strikes and hostage situations both in January and November as well as recent events in Mali where hostages were killed at a hotel.

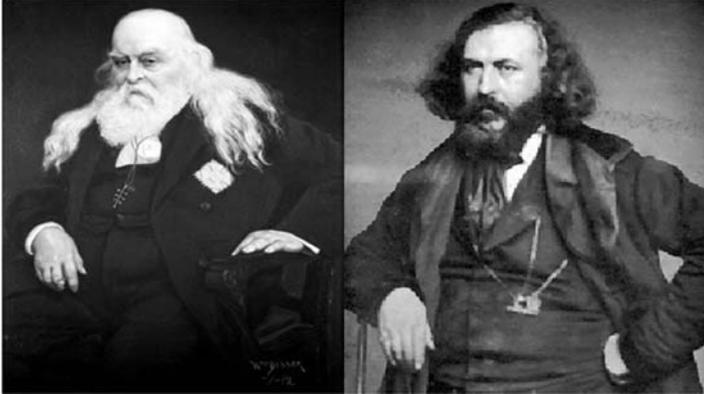

Additionally in 2015 we are also seeing mass displacement of refugees from Syria to Europe, the perfect camouflage for ISIS trained terrorists to slip into Europe and wreak devastation as we have seen recently in France.

Is this all coincidence?.

IT ALL GOES BACK TO FREEMASONRY

In the 19th Century Albert Pike, head of the Scottish rite of freemasonry for North America established a framework for bringing about the One World Order. Based on a vision revealed to him by what was a demonic entity, Albert Pike wrote a blueprint of events that would play themselves out in the 20th century, with even more of these events yet to come.

It is this blueprint which we believe unseen leaders are following today, knowingly or not, to engineer the planned Third and Final World War.

Pike sent the contents of his vision to an Italian revolutionary leader, Giuseppe Mazzini (1805-1872), a 33rd degree Mason who was selected by the Illuminati to head their worldwide operations in 1834. (Mazzini also founded the Mafia in 1860).

Because of Mazzini's revolutionary activities in Europe, the Bavarian government cracked down on the Illuminati and other secret societies for allegedly plotting a massive overthrow of Europe's monarchies. As the secrets of the Illuminati were revealed, they were persecuted and eventually disbanded, only to re-establish themselves in the depths of other organizations, of which Freemasonry was one.

During his leadership, Mazzini enticed Albert Pike into the (now formally disbanded, but still operating) Illuminati. Pike was fascinated by the idea of a one world government, and when asked by Mazzini, readily agreed to write a ritual tome that guided the transition from average high-ranking mason into a top-ranking Illuminati mason (33rd degree). Since Mazzini also wanted

Pike to head the Illuminati's American chapter, he clearly felt Pike was worthy of such a task.

Pike's vision was that there would be three world wars needed to create the conditions for the world to finally accept a masonic one world government. His detailed description of the first two world wars whilst he was living in the 19th century was far beyond any sage prediction. It was clearly spiritually influenced.

When you read the above I want you to pay special attention to his description of the third world war which describes the third world war as a confrontation between Islam and political Zionism (political Zionism meaning Israel and the systems and nations that support the nation of Israel).

With this in view it helps to then contextualize what is happening with these ongoing global tragedies which in some shape or form are being influenced by Islam. The purpose of these tragedies is to completely drain the world to the point where it accepts the need for the establishment of a luciferian new world order.

It is amazing to see how this is happening. The threat of global terrorism was the key reason behind the establishment of the patriot act and increased electronic surveillance across much of the western world. The threat of Islam has speeded up government discussions on identity cards and the need for biometric identifications as a means to provide greater security.

The threat of Islamic terror has contributed significantly to the G7's war in completely overhauling the offshore tax havens such as Switzerland, Cayman Islands, Antigua, Belize, Seychelles, Isle of Man, etc. by pressuring them to sign up to new laws that overhaul their privacy policies in the name of tracking down accounts used by Islamic extremists.

We could go on and on. The one way to bring in a one world government is through the Hegelian dialectic of constant fear and tragic disasters to the point where the population say enough is enough. We need a new solution.

The First World War must be brought about in order to permit the Illuminati to overthrow the power of the Czars in Russia and of making that country a fortress of atheistic Communism. The divergences caused by the "agentur" (agents) of the Illuminati between the British and Germanic Empires will be used to foment this war. At the end of the war, Communism will be built and used in order to destroy the other governments and in order to weaken the religions.

The Second World War must be fomented by taking advantage of the differences between the Fascists and the political Zionists. This war must be brought about so that Nazism is destroyed and that the political Zionism be strong enough to institute a sovereign state of Israel in Palestine. During the Second World War, International Communism must become strong enough in order to balance Christendom, which would be then restrained and held in check until the time when we would need it for the final social cataclysm.

The Third World War must be fomented by taking advantage of the differences caused by the "agentur" of the "Illuminati" between the political Zionists and the leaders of Islamic World. The war must be conducted in such a way that Islam (the Moslem Arabic World) and political Zionism (the State of Israel) mutually destroy each other. Meanwhile the other nations, once more divided on this issue will be constrained to fight to the point of complete physical, moral, spiritual and economical exhaustion...We shall unleash the Nihilists and the atheists, and we shall provoke a formidable social cataclysm which in all its horror will show clearly to the nations the effect of absolute atheism, origin of savagery and of the most bloody turmoil. Then everywhere, the citizens, obliged to defend themselves against the world minority of revolutionaries, will exterminate those destroyers of civilization, and the multitude, disillusioned with Christianity, whose deistic spirits will from that moment be without compass or direction, anxious for an ideal, but without knowing where to render its adoration, will receive the true light through the universal manifestation of the pure doctrine of Lucifer, brought finally out in the public view. This manifestation will result from the general reactionary movement which will follow the destruction of Christianity and atheism, both conquered and exterminated at the same time.

Albert Pike Aug. 15, 1871

Unknown to many political commentators and media experts, Islam is the fall guy which the global elite are using to justify their end. The establishment of a luciferian new world order. These tragic attacks will increase in intensity until they culminate in an actual military move by the Islamic world to seize Jerusalem.

Its further amazing that some Christian researchers believe that Islam will one day dominate the world and be the means by which the Antichrist will be revealed along with the Mark of the Beast. You have to wonder whether people holding these views actually understand freemasonry and Albert Pikes vision because Islam is not the end, rather it is the means to another end that has nothing to do with Islam and everything to do with a masonic luciferian conspiracy. The bible confirms this in Ezekiel 38 with the destruction of nations whose political desire is jihad and the destruction of Israel.

A RELIGION OF THE SWORD

The political press will have you believe that these extremists are not representative of mainstream Islam and have interpreted the Koran in their own extreme way to suit their political agenda. It is also clear that there are millions of Muslims who absolutely abhor these terrorist campaigns. Millions of Muslims have assimilated into western culture and are a vibrant part of our communities. They have a much more tolerant perspective of religion although many would still be intolerant of their prophet being abused by political satire.

However the Quran contains at least 109 verses that call Muslims to war with nonbelievers for the sake of Islamic rule. Some are quite graphic, with commands to chop off heads and fingers and kill infidels wherever they may be hiding. Muslims who do not join the fight are called 'hypocrites' and warned that Allah will send them to Hell if they do not join the slaughter.

Quran (2:191-193) - "And slay them wherever ye find them, and drive them out of the places whence they drove you out, for persecution [of Muslims] is worse than slaughter [of non-believers]... but if they desist, then lo! Allah is forgiving and merciful. And fight them until persecution is no more, and religion is for Allah."

Quran (3:151) - "Soon shall We cast terror into the hearts of the Unbelievers, for that they joined companions with Allah, for which He had sent no authority".

Quran (3:56) - "As to those who reject faith, I will punish them with terrible agony in this world and in the Hereafter, nor will they have anyone to help."

Unfortunately, there are very few verses of tolerance and peace to abrogate or even balance out the many that call for nonbelievers to be fought and subdued until they either accept humiliation, convert to Islam, or are killed. Muhammad's own martial legacy - and that of his companions - along with the remarkable stress on violence found in the Quran have produced a trail of blood and tears across world history.

THE CONSEQUENCE OF ISLAM

The CIA and government officials around the world are using the Paris attacks to push brand new surveillance laws. And it was all planned in advance.

While democratic systems usually take months (if not years) to pass new laws and legislation, it only took a few days after the Paris attacks to slap honest citizens with more surveillance laws. Several organizations are indeed capitalizing on the fear and panic caused by the attacks to bring forth a brand new agenda that takes a bold new step towards total government surveillance. What's worse: Leaked information proves that authorities were waiting on a terror attack to go forward with their plan.

In a leaked e-mail written by Robert S. Litt, the intelligence community's top lawyer during the month August, the plan is clearly outlined: There is a lack of support for the banning of encrypted communications but a terror attack could quickly turn the tide.

The New York police commissioner, Bill Bratton, called it a "game changer" and, insinuated new legislation that would outlaw encryption was necessary by adding: "[Encryption] is something that is going to need to be debated very quickly because we cannot continue operating where we are blind.

CIA Director John Brennan is also using the terror attacks to plead for unrestricted government surveillance of all communications, blaming "privacy groups" for hindering their job.

Recently, in an epic episode of blame shifting, the CIA director, John Brennan, reportedly said privacy advocates have undermined the ability of spies to monitor terrorists. He explained:

"Because of a number of unauthorized disclosures and a lot of hand-wringing over the government's role in the effort to try to uncover these terrorists, there have been some policy and legal and other actions that are taken that make our ability collectively, internationally to find these terrorists much more challenging", adding that there is a "misrepresentation of what the intelligence security services are doing".

Read Brennan's comments carefully because they are very revealing. When he says "legal actions", he's referring to the fact that multiple federal courts have ruled that the government's secret mass surveillance on millions of Americans is illegal. So it sounds like the CIA director is saying it's a shame that intelligence agencies can't operate completely above the law any more, and is scapegoating any failings on his agency's part on accountability that is the hallmark of any democracy. (Though he still can apparently operate above the law.)

More importantly, Brennan's comments are incredibly dishonest. The post-Snowden USA Freedom Act passed by Congress reformed exactly one of the countless mass spying programs the US runs. It was the one that sucked up the phone calls of Americans only, and here's the thing: it has been active this whole time and isn't scheduled to shut down until the end of the month.

On the other side of the Atlantic, politicians in the United Kingdom, which already has the most expansive surveillance laws in the western world, are using the tragedy to attempt to rush through their even more invasive, new mass-spying bill that aims at allowing police to see the websites every citizen visits and to force companies like Apple to backdoor their encrypted tools.

None of these laws have proven effective in preventing terror attacks. In fact, the Paris attacks took place six months after the enactment of a massive (and controversial) surveillance law in France. Passed by the French Parliament in May in response to the attacks on the Paris-based magazine Charlie Hebdo, the law allows the government to monitor phone calls and emails of people suspected of connections to terrorism without the authorization of a judge.

But it goes further than that. The law requires Internet service providers to install "black boxes" that are designed to vacuum up and analyze metadata on the Web-browsing and general Internet use habits of millions of people using the Web and to make that data available to intelligence agencies. In exceptional cases, the law allows the government to deploy what are called "ISMI catchers" to track all mobile phone communications in a given area. These catchers are basically designed to impersonate cell towers, but they intercept and record communications data from phones within its range, and can also track the movements of people carrying the phones.

Finally, the law allows government agents to break into the homes of suspected terrorists for the purpose of planting microphone bugs and surveillance cameras and installing keyloggers on their computers, devices that capture data on every keystroke and mouse click. In short, after each traumatic event in the Western world (manufactured or not), attention is turned towards a very specific and targeted item that "needs to be addressed as soon as possible". This item is, in fact, part of controversial law that is sitting on shelves until it can be passed insidiously, while the masses are struck with horror. It happened with the Patriot Act and, almost 15 years later, it is happening again. Their formula is "Order Out of Chaos" and it keeps working. For more on understanding the strategic implications of the rise of terrorism and its prophetic significance, see The Final Crusade at
